generation of officers who will owe their rise to Chairman XI, who heads the CMC. According to The Asia Times, the ethnicity factor plays an important role in promotion: "while sweeping military change is on the cards at China's upcoming communist party Congress, few expect ethnic minority officers from unstable regions to make top brass."

To support his argument, he quoted the Chumar incident in Ladakh which happened as President Xi landed in India on a state visit in September 2014; a very difficult to confirm. It is, however, clear that a younger generation is taking over. This reflects the deep changes in the military establishment in the last month.
